

Why is Indonesia a leader in the lithium battery industry?

In 2024, Indonesia stands at the forefront of the rapidly evolving lithium battery industry, catalyzed by its significant reserves of raw materials essential for battery production and a growing focus on renewable energy sources. As Southeast Asia's largest economy, Indonesia has strategically positioned itself as a

Will Indonesia become the hub of battery manufacturing?

Indonesia is on track to become the hub of battery manufacturing, including lithium-ion and its components, thanks to its abundant raw material resources, such as cobalt and nickel, and investments from various global companies.

Why should you choose PT Indonesia Battery Corporation?

The key advantage of PT Indonesia Battery Corporation lies in its integrated approach to manufacturing. Utilizing Indonesia's abundant nickel resources, the company maintains control over the entire production process, from raw material extraction to the final battery product.

Why do EV batteries need to be imported from Indonesia?

However, the scarcity of lithium in Indonesia, as the critical mineral for battery EVs, causing a dependency on the import is inevitable. Most of EV batteries, such as NMC battery, contains a cathode made up of lithium, nickel, manganese, and cobalt.

How much battery capacity does Indonesia have?

The Energy Shift Institute (Energy Shift) foresees that this year, Indonesia will hold less than 0.4% of global battery manufacturing capacity. In absolute terms, that capacity is just 10 GWh out of the more than 2,800 GWh the world has in total, not to mention the global figure is set to double by 2030.

How much battery capacity will Indonesia have by 2030?

Yet, by this year, Indonesia will have merely 10 gigawatt-hours (GWh) of battery production capacity in place, less than 0.4% of the more than 2,800 GWh in global capacity. And with global capacity on course to double by 2030, the country's significance in battery production looks set to recede into the background.
