Should you buy a portable power station?

Planning for mostly-unplugged camping and home electric security might require buying a versatile portable power station like the EcoFlow RIVER 2 Pro or EcoFlow DELTA 2 -- or buying more than just one model. Either way, you want to ensure that you have enough electrical output for your anticipated off-grid activities and home backup needs.

What is the best portable power station under $200?

For those looking for a power station for off-grid living, the FlashFish 300W "solar generator" is my best portable power station under $200, thanks to the included MPPT solar charging capability. It packs an impressive 222 watt-hours into a 6-pound unit - after the Anker 521, it's one of the highest capacities I've seen in generators under $200.

What is the best portable power station for backup?

Anker Solix F1200 (1,229Wh): This unit was previously known as the PowerHouse 757 from Anker, and was also CNET's previous pick for "best portable power station for backup." Its UPS mode was one of the earlier units to boast "less than 20ms" switchover time in the event of a power outage. It's also currently $500 off on Anker's site.

What is the cheapest power station?

At just 18 pounds, the T-1000 is the cheapest power station in its immediate weight class (about 40% cheaper than its immediate competitors). It also appears to go on sale fairly often; as of this writing, it's currently listed at $470.

Which battery is best for a portable power station?

These days most portable power stations, including all those we recommend here, use LiFePO4 batteries, which are capable of holding far more cycles, which is the number of times a battery goes through a complete discharge and recharge, than older lithium-ion batteries while also being less likely to combust.
